Here are few of this year's projects:

Audio Book

Mitch Margo's riveting novel—which won two awards this past year—has just been published as an audio book. The project took a year to complete and features eight stellar performers. We recorded in New York and Los Angeles, creating a hybrid audio book-audio drama. See studio-shots, read reviews and purchase your copy as Audible Download or physical CD:

The multi-racial cast takes listeners through a highly relevant, civil rights story that has it all: love and hate, prejudice and inclusivity, mystery, drama, and romance. This legal-thriller has been compared to a John Gresham, and has been nominated for audio awards.

DRAMA – Audio Plays

American Heritage Productions

Beverly & Tim Mills write extraordinary plays about the American founding fathers and mothers. So far we have produced two audio plays for them and designed their website, with more offerings in the works for the new year. www.AmericanHeritagePublications.com.

Children's Book

We were honored and delighted to work with Carole Sondrup on her first book, Elephants Love Cowboys Too. Her children's picture-book tells the real-life story of her father (a dear family friend), the extraordinary Bob Norris, a well-known rancher who adopted an orphaned African elephant. The story is amazing and shows a communications breakthrough that has proven helpful with autistic children. Find out more at her marvelous website: <http://cowboysandelephants.com>

Carole generously donates all proceeds to her brother's charity. What a wonderful gift this book is for parents, grandparents, and all interested in autism research.

Charles Clark

Charles Clark and his Hot-Rod series truly gets his readers' engine revving. He now has a novel, and its prequel short story. While we wait for his next book, we can enjoy his monthly newsletter/ blog which always include unique insights and a wry sense of humor not to be missed! His terrific books are also available as audios. <http://charlesclarkauthor.com>
